

SUPER SCHOLARS

“Repetition is the mother of all learning.” – St. Thomas Aquinas

Goal

Children who want to earn the title of Super Scholar will be orally tested on all memory work at the end of the year. If they know each fact, they will be known as Super Scholars! (All effort will be recognized.)

Together

Catholic Schoolhouse chapters meet 24 times a year to introduce nearly 200 pieces of information. This done through song, games, movement, and other techniques geared toward memorization.

With Parents

You can work with your children by drilling memory work during school time, while in the car, and anywhere else your days may take you. Valuable tips and resources are available at www.CatholicSchoolhouse.com.

On Their Own

Striving toward the goal of becoming a Super Scholar will motivate your children to take the responsibility on their own shoulders. What a great way to encourage independence and gumption!

What is the purpose of all of this memory work? Why aren't we diving deeper? Why does my four-year-old need to know about the three branches of government?

You may be asking yourselves these questions or may have heard them from others. The basic answer is that we are laying the foundation for a lifetime of learning. We're making an organized place in our children's brains to store more information they will pick up along the way about Coronado, invertebrates, the eight parts of speech, and so much more!

Introducing Super Scholars

Nationwide, Catholic Schoolhouse offers a program called Super Scholars to encourage the memorization of these important bits of knowledge. Children will practice together, with you, and on their own to strive for the esteemed title of Super Scholar!
